Pre-Convention
Through July 16

Post-Convention
July 17 – September 15

Get Out The Vote (GOTV)

The Last Weekend

All year long

Canvassing Pre-convention, Post-convention, GOTV, The Last Weekend

Knocking on doors to have face-to-face conversations is the most effective way to convince voters to turn out to vote in an election.

Fundraising Pre-convention, Post-convention

Early money helps a candidate run ads to reach voters, hire campaign staff, and build a robust field program. Use Swing Left's personal fundraising pages and compliance guides to get started.

House Parties Pre-convention, Post-convention

Planning parties, watch parties, and letter writing parties—whether at your home, a library, or a bar—provide a great opportunity to bring people together, meet new volunteers, and grow your team.

Voter Registration Pre-convention, Post-convention, GOTV

The earlier this happens, the better! Many states don't allow same-day registration, so the sooner we get someone registered, the sooner we can get them ready to vote—and volunteer.

Letter Writing Pre-convention, Post-convention

Vote Forward letters are proven to be 2x as effective as a postcard at turning out voters in an election. Handwriting letters is also an easy first action for people new to volunteering.

Phone Banking GOTV, The Last Weekend

If you can't knock doors and it's too late to send letters, making calls is another way to engage voters, especially during the early voting period.
